

For Congress--7th District, GEN. W. H. FORNEY, OF CALHOUN.

The editor has gone to Atlanta on business this week.

We return thanks to Mr. J. W. Whiteside for some very large Scuppernon grapes.

Prof. Borden has a cat at his house that lost her kittens, and she has substituted in their stead a couple of huge rats.

The concert given by Miss Mamie Montgomery's school at the female academy came off last Friday night, and we learn, the pupils did well.

Capt. Savage served notice on Mr. Hammond that he would take testimony in regard to the Anniston box and the official return, in the case of Savage vs. Hammond--contest to a seat in the Legislature.

See dissolution notice of A. L. Stewart & Co.

We will take this occasion to say that our terms for all local notices is ten cents a line for each insertion. Those wishing to use our local columns will bear in mind that no deviation will be made from this rule.

President Morehead of the Mississippi Valley Planter's Association made a sensible speech before the Association at its recent meeting. The Montgomery Advertiser, noticing his speech, says:

"In regard to the loan agencies which foreign capitalists have recently established in the South, it strikes us Mr. Morehead takes a very proper view. One in Atlanta has loaned out a million dollars to farmers in twelve months, and is now letting out more at the rate of $100,000 per month. Farm mortgages piling up at that rate seems a favorable condition of affairs, yet if the farmers don't borrow from the loan agencies they must from somebody else and often at a higher rate of interest. The more capital comes the lower is bound to be its cost. Capital is our great need and the more comes the better. Says Mr. Morehead:

A number of loan agencies have been started in the South in the past two years for the purpose of loaning money on plantations, attracted by the security of such investments and the prevailing high rate of interest. Wherever two or more such companies are operating the interest rate has been decreased and the general terms given to planters much ameliorated.

A practical illustration of this was afforded less than a year ago in China."

Negroes Rising.

BY RICHARD RELL, COL. 1892.

CHOCOLOCO, ALA., Oct. 19, '82. Mr. Editor, Dear Sir: I wish you would give place in your valuable paper to this communication, which is intended as a slight vindication of the Negro as a citizen. We wish to have the public to know that the shameful stigma attempted upon the character of the Negro race, known as "Negroes rising on the 16th, 17th and 18th Oct. 1882" is untrue. It was the white people who were induced to believe that the negroes were going to rise in revolt and attempt to slay all the whites but the young girls. We wish to say to the public that it was all a false and malicious report. We regard it as an attempt to place a stigma upon us as a race, and is calculated to do us great injury. We can't see the object or understand the design of the person or persons starting it. But we are astonished at our white friends for being so easily deceived and glibly credulous. Under the law the negro man is the equal of the white man. For what then, could he rise? And what would he gain by rising? Why should a handful of negroes rise up in barbarous array against an array of white people--the whites well equipped with all the requisites of war and the negro empty handed? No, sir! The negroes have got some sense under those knotty knicks which you look upon. I can't see how the intelligent white people could be excited as to import arms and ammunition to kill the few negroes in the country?

If you will give the negro a chance and learn him, he will be a good citizen. We are not Indians, lurking around all day and come in at night and massacre without mercy. We work all day and lie down at night. On the night the white people were standing guard around negro huts and on the road side watching the negroes, and the women and children almost crazy with fright, the negro was in his humble home in repose and rest, knowing nothing of what was going on. We are proud the thing went off as it did and all turned out to be nothing, the negroes knowing nothing of the excitement. Now, we claim to be law-abiding citizens, as runs any American--it is true as our humble qualifications will permit us to be, and we claim equal protection under the law, and demand that the author of this vile slander, which has so excited the people of the county, be found and rigidly punished.

There seems to be a pique at the negro that has existed ever since his emancipation, and we do not know for what. Is it because he is black? He did not make himself. Is it because he had been a slave? He is not responsible for that--he did not make himself a slave. Is it because he is ignorant? The shame is on our white friends of the South--the negro served them last. We are right here in their midst--help to educate and enlighten us. God will bless you for it in all your inheritance. Pity the heathen at your door and try to enlighten him. It is true there are two distinct races in this nation, but there is but one God to provide for all. The God that protects the white man sends His blessing upon the black man. Then let the Government extend its protection to all alike. Give us a chance to build up our reputation. The negro's chance in this country is difficult. Why should it be? Why cannot we live together as a free people in harmony? We claim to be Christians and all worship the same God. Assuredly, then, it is a duty incumbent upon all to live in peace and charity.

I know whereof I speak, for I have used it extensively. I regard Parker's Ginger Tonic a most excellent remedy for kidney, lung and stomach disorders. It invigorates without intoxicating. J. Francis, Religio Philo. Journal, Chicago.

NOTICE.--On Friday last I took up a Dark Bay Horse Mule, white mouth 14 to 15 hands high and from 8 to 10 years old. Owner will please call for him at once. W. H. COOPER, Alexandria, Ala.

We return thanks to those of our patrons who have settled up. Many of those, on our books, however, are not coming up to settlement as promptly as we expected. We had hoped to collect enough to pay outstanding obligations of the office before leaving for Montgomery.

DEARMANVILLE LOCALS.

DEARMANVILLE, Oct. 24th. The first car load of cotton was shipped over the Georgia Pacific Railroad today by Mr. H. Jenkins to Rome, Ga. The work on the Railroad is being pushed rapidly on, and from good authority we will have through trains to Atlanta by the 15th of Nov. next.

Center, the former name of this place, was so called from the concentration of several roads to this point. DeArmanville is located five miles North-east of Oxford in the Choctawhatchee valley which is 4 miles wide and 30 miles long, bounded on either side by lofty mountains laden with as good iron ore as can be found anywhere.

Streets and business lots are being surveyed out to-day. We have five stores and no groceries. We expect to ship a car load of cotton every week.

SUBSCRIBER.

OUR MOTTO.

We sell goods cheap. They will sell. And honest trade and low prices will fill. Welcome everybody to Germania Tanning Company's Store.

We have just bought 100 Ladies' hats, very cheap, and received them yesterday by express. We will sell them all trimmed, all colors, all styles, including "A-the-tic" hat from 50 cents to $5.00. We will sell them cheap, and the prettiest, the neatest, and the most fashionable can wear them with pleasure and pride.

Read our previous advertisements. Advertising like talk we know is cheap, but we forfeit honor and money if we do not do all that we advertise.

Why Does Germania Sell so Cheap?

This is the answer. People say, you say as much, gentlemen, for goods as other houses do. Well, we don't intend to argue that point, though we claim buying for large stores, we buy more goods than anybody else, and as to whether we get them cheaper or not we don't care to say. But we do say this, our main business profit is our Tannery. For this we bought the property.

Our total store expense is comparatively nothing. We do say that we will sell you goods cheaper than you can buy them elsewhere; and remember we don't force anybody to buy.

We tell you the truth and nothing but the truth, and ask your inspection free of charge and see for yourselves.

We are strangers among you, but we have come to stay and make high prices pass away.

FIND YOUR PLACE.

In this world, so great and mighty, There's a place for every one. And each one must find his corner. Ere life's battle can be won. If you meet with stern rebuff, Do not stop to mind it. Search with all your heart and soul For your place, and find it!

Set to work with care and patience, And a firmly-settled mind, That with pluck and perseverance, You your place will surely find. Pause a moment then and think What line must prefer you, This decided, go your way, And let naught deter you.

One is born to be a merchant, One towards law with longing turns, One to sea, and one to physic, One with poet's fire burns. One is made to grind the grain, One to sow and reap it— Every mortal has his place, Find yours, then, and keep it.

While you go to school or college, Keep your end always in view, Learn all that you can about it, Know your business through and through, When your place at length awaits, With a strong heart take it, Do your duty, hold your fort, And do not forsake it!

HER DANGER.

Blanche usually spent her evenings alone of late, unless some of her oldtime friends dropped in for an hour or so, so that to-night, sitting all by herself in the dainty little sitting-room, just off the nursery, where baby Theo was sleeping in her cradle, she was no more lonesome than usual.

And yet there were traces of tears on her face, for somehow she had been thinking it all over, and it seemed to her very strange and pitiful that, before she had been two years married, her husband should prefer to leave her alone every evening as regularly as evening came.

Theo St. Guest was a handsome fellow, and Blanche had loved him with all her heart and soul when she married him. She was so proud, and justly proud of him, and they had begun their new life under no dullness on their happiness.

Then baby came—so like handsome father, with his curling brown hair, and bright hazel eyes, and beautiful mouth, that Blanche, in a little ecstasy, had said there was but one name in the world for her—Theo—for her papa, and after that—very, very gradually, the shadow began to fall on the lovely home.

Sitting to-night in her sitting-room, making such a fair picture in her pink lawn dress, with her fair golden hair rippling off her forehead her dark eyes bright with unshed tears, Blanche was busy thinking it all over, with a desperate little ache in her heart.

"He has not spent one evening home with me since baby Theo was three months old. Every night, or regularly as night comes, he says he must go back to the office—and he never used to go."

Her lovely mouth quivered with the distressing thoughts of her heart, and she leaned her head back against the cushions, the tears dropping slowly, great diamond drops.

"Before we were married he often used to tell me he neglected his business many a time to be with me, and now—"

A little despairing look gloomed over her face.

"Now—he goes out every evening, not knowing or caring how I feel, or how I get along."

A little lusty cry from the blue silk and lace-canopied crib in the nursery momentarily scattered her thoughts, as she went and took the baby up in her loving arms, and cooed and hushed it, with its velvety cheek against her white breast.

"Mother's little comfort," she thought, "but what a sad difference in everything your coming has made, little Theo."

"Before I was gay, and strong and well, and could ride and dance, and go wherever I chose without stopping to consider if it would hurt me."

"But now, baby mine, it is all so changed and papa doesn't love me any more because I cannot amuse and entertain him."

"If it were he who was weak and wretched, and suffering in any way for my sake, I would love him better than ever; but men are men."

A tear, dropped on baby's beautiful head, and just that minute a maid stepped quietly in with a card for Mrs. St. Guest, that bore a name that sent a swift little flush all over her face—Ransom Pierce, to whom she had been engaged for a year, whom she had never seen since they parted at the time of the misunderstanding that resulted so fatally.

She laid baby carefully down in its blue and white nest, before she turned to the girl.

"You may stay by Miss Theo, Annie until I come back."

Then she went into her dressing-room, and stood a moment in indecision.

Should she go down? Ought she to go down?

For a second the question came to her, then as suddenly, the ridiculousness of questioning her duty as a lady and a hostess occurred to her, and, not knowing the brief hesitation was the warning voice of her good angel, this lonely, heart-sore little woman went down-stairs to see Ransom Pierce, who had been late-ordered to choose this special time for seeing her.

She was more delicately lovely than ever, and a great throb of the old love thrilled all through him as she entered the parlor, in her sweet, grave way he remembered so well.

While he—with his eager face, his reverential manner, somehow made her feel that, after all, she was not wholly deserted by friends.

He took her hand in his, and looked straight down in her eyes.

"When I saw you last I did not expect to meet you the next time like this. But if you are happy—"

She smiled—thoroughly loyal little husband lover that she was.

"Oh, yes, indeed—and very glad to see you, Ransom."

"I was just a little lonely to-night for Mr. St. Guest is busy at his office quite often now."

That was the keynote to all that followed—those few innocent words of hers, on the subject lying nearest her heart, told Ransom Pierce the whole story, and he exerted himself as he had not done in many a day to make himself pleasant to this woman, who had once thought she loved him.

And he succeeded in it.

It was—oh, pity!—it was quite a novelty to Blanche to enjoy an evening, and she brightened and bloomed under the excitement, so that when he went away, in an hour's time, Mr. Pierce ventured to take her hand in a close clasp, and ask her if he might be permitted to do what he could towards relieving her lonesome hours.

And in pure, glad gratitude she said yes.

And in one week's time she discovered that instead of gratitude being the motive, it was a spirit of coquetry suddenly developed in her, whose object was not to reward this friend, but to punish her husband.

Only St. Guest would not be punished. Once or twice he said he was sorry he was obliged to leave her alone so much, but that it would not always be so, he hoped.

Every day he kissed her, and said he was so, so sorry she did not feel well—but all the same, as soon as dinner was over and Theo-girl had had her romp with him, he took his departure, and Blanche knew it would be twelve, maybe one o'clock before he would come in.

At the first, Blanche had been unable to sleep, knowing he was away, but latterly, she was beginning to be so indifferent, that when at length he did come, he found her sleeping.

"That is right," he would say to her, next morning, and Blanche would smile frigidly, and wish she only could do something—anything, almost, to pique him into the old attention.

In these days, when Ransom Pierce came often, always fascinating, and kind, and devoted, Blanche St. Guest did not know whether she was more miserable or glad, until one special day when an October sun was shining brightly, almost warmly, and she was sitting in her room, just where her husband had left her two days before, when he kissed her good-bye, and told her he would not be home for two days, but to try and not be lonesome while he was gone if she could help it.

It had been the bitterest trial for her to endure—this long absence from him, and all the more, as he offered no explanatory word as to why he was going.

"He has ceased to care for me—I know that," she had tortured herself with thinking all those miserable hours.

"He bids me not to be lonesome—if I can help it,—it is a shame I ever married him, to be neglected so!"

And for the first time, Blanche felt a mutinous uprising in her heart for her husband to whom she would have so gladly given all her love and confidence—only he did not want it!

At that very moment Ransom Pierce came in, just as Satan's own always steps in at the right moment.

"What—not in the Slough of Despond this beautiful day?" he said, as she went in the parlor.

Then, going up to her, and extending his hand, he looked down in her eyes as no man but a husband or lover has the right to look.

"What is the matter, Blanche? Is it anything I can relieve?"

His low, caressing tones were infinitely soothing to her overstrained nerves, and the tears came to her eyes.

"I am a little lonely, only. Theo has been gone two days."

"Two days—away from you! Blanche, Blanche, how could he or any man leave you so long? If I had you for my wife—oh, my darling, why—"

A little gasp of amazed horror was on her lips—Ransom talking so to her—to her!

He, in his blind passion, went on—"I cannot bear to see you so unhappy—"

"Blanche!"

"I have watched you—I know just how it is—St. Guest is not worthy of you—"

"Allow me to say I differ with you, Pierce, and to suggest that you are both insulting and terrifying my wife."

"I think we can excuse you—can't we Blanche?"

Blanche had flown to her husbands arms, as he entered the room just in time to hear Pierce's words; and to see "the horror on his wife's face, as the crumbling edge of the precipice suddenly became visible to her."

There were few words, very few, between the two men, and then when Pierce had gone, never to cross their threshold again, St. Guest took his wife to his arms.

"You have been so cold, so cruel of late, dear," he said, "that I was almost afraid to venture on any demonstration. But may I not make my peace with you now?"

She lay sobbing, with her head on his breast.

"You have left me so much alone, you made me think you had grown tired of me, Theo," she said, between her sobs.

"It was for your own sake," he explained, tenderly.

"I may have been to blame for keeping my plans a secret from you, but I wanted to surprise you, Blanche."

"If I have seemed cold to you Heaven knows it was because I thought you preferred to keep aloof from me. But I was mistaken, was I, darling?"

"Oh Theo, Theo, you don't know how much I love you!"

He kissed her tenderly.

"You will never blame me for—for what he said?" she asked, almost timidly.

"We will never think about it. You are my wife Blanche—if I could not trust you, you never would have been."

"Come here, dear," and the gravity in his tone changed to gay pleasantness, as he arose, and linked her arm in his, and escorted her to the window, where, at the door, stood an exquisite basket-phaeton, with blue-lined and silk-fringed canopy top, a pair of beautiful coal-black ponies, glittering harness, and gay robes.

"Why I worked over hours, my darling," he said.

"These are for you, a gift from me to my little girl's mother, who has sacrificed so much of her health and strength in giving me my child."

"Will you accept it, wife?"

She threw her arms around his neck, kissed him over and over.

"Oh, how wicked I have been, how unworthy I am of the least of your goodness!"

"Theo, darling, I will never doubt you again!"

He pushed the hair off her white brow, and looked gravely in her tearful, penitent, happy eyes.

"Did you doubt me, Blanche? Then, there was danger. But—remember this, dear—never again doubt, or fear, or question my love for you."

And she never did.

Iron That India Has.

It is officially intimated that the Government of India have for some time past had under their special consideration the importance of developing the iron industry in India.

In Assam, Kutch, Behar, Burma, and the Kingdoms of the north, the iron industry is already well advanced, and the Government are now endeavoring to extend it to other parts of the country.

In Lower Bengal, the Ranigunj district, Sonthalia, and Chutia Nagpur; in the central provinces, Sambalpur, and Chanda; in Central India, the ranges near Gwalior, and in the Punjab, numerous localities are found to be specially endowed with all the requisites for successful iron production.

THE ELECTIONS.

VICTORY EVERYWHERE.
The Avalanche Democracy.

We wish we had about two dozen cuts of game roosters to plant at the heads of our columns to express by symbol our exultant feelings over the glorious result of Tuesday's elections in two thirds of the States of the Union.

Alabama sends a solid Democratic delegation to Congress. The 8th District is redeemed and Luke Pryor is Congressman. Shelby was too small for Lowe's shoes. Forney goes in by the "Usual Majority." Harndon makes it in the Mobile District by a rather close shave. Shelby in the Dallas District didn't. Herbert laid over Sam Rice handsomely in the Montgomery District. Williams and Hewitt walked over their independent opponents without trouble. Oats went in practically without opposition. Forney beat Bingham in Talladega Beat, and this is the first time it has gone Democratic since the war. Forney beat Bingham everywhere, thus fulfilling the prophecies of Bingham and McAfce. The Democrats or Alabama rejoice. Do those men who didn't go to the polls feel as good as those who did go and fought the fight? Suppose every Democrat had stayed away from the polls? The Radicals would have been throwing up their hats now. But in the hour of victory there is no place for rebuke. It is the season when man can be generous. Let us pass on to Georgia.

There they too have a solid Democratic delegation in Congress. Felton and Spear, both Independents, are beaten.

New York
bounds into the Democratic column to the tune of a hundred thousand majority.

Connecticut
follows suit and sends old Eaton back to Congress.

Pennsylvania
walks from under the yoke of the Cummins into the Democratic household.

Massachusetts
elects Ben Butler, the Democratic nominee for Governor by a large majority. We used to say down here that Governor Butler stole spoons. We take it all back. Uncle Ben, as he is now familiarly and affectionately termed, joined the Democratic party some few years ago and washed all his political sins away. Uncle Ben knows a cat when he sees it, and it is no cat that will jump. Massachusetts gives the Democrats a gain in Congress also, as indeed do most of the States.

New Hampshire
also joins the band. In short, in the language of the Noble Headline Poet of the Selma Times: "Everywhere the people have spoken, and from Massachusetts to California the mighty weapon of American Freemen has spoken and quietly the ballot box tells the tale New York, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Hampshire throw off the yoke and elect good and true men. A Democratic House is assured by an overwhelming majority and F. and Bossism stands rebuked."

Many other States too numerous to mention, always Democratic repeat the story with emphasis. Enough is known to enable us to say it is a phenomenal and tidal wave victory of Democracy. There isn't enough Radicals and Independents left to bury their dead. Let a Democratic Congress proceed to put the corpse in the ground.

The miserable little route agents who cabbage daily papers for the benefit of friends whenever there is an important event in the daily press may perhaps play their pranks a couple of years longer, but after then the Democratic party is going to kick them so high they will not light during the period of their natural lives. After every election of importance the people of Jacksonville miss their daily paper mail. As on such occasions there are usually no Selma or Montgomery papers on the trains for sale, the conclusion is they are cabbaged en route.

Messrs. Hammond and Grant leave for Montgomery Sunday next. The Legislature opens Tuesday. The readers of the Republican will be kept posted by letters from the capital.

We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Mark W. Johnson & Co., Atlanta. We have seen this house and know it can do all its advertisement promises.

While the Presbyterian Synod of New York and Ohio have resolved not to become delegated bodies, the Synod of Illinois has resolved to adopt the delegate system, one minister and one elder for every eight ministers and one of each for every fraction of four or more. The Synod of Pennsylvania is also to be a delegate body, one minister and one elder to every sixteen churches.

One of the most brutal crimes ever committed is reported from Danville, Va. A little negro boy, aged eight years, had a silver dollar, which Dave Mills, a colored man, coveted. The boy refused to give it up, and Mills, in order to coerce him into compliance with his demand, caught him and held him over the escape pipe of a steam engine until the little fellow was nearly cooked.

Augusta Chronicle:
A SCANDAL OF THE AGE.—It is a scandal of the age that the punishment so quickly and summarily visited upon negroes who commit manslaughter is not so zealously and alertly meted out to white men who often know better and have less excuse.

Temperance in Vermont.

Vermont may claim to be the banner State of legislative temperance. She has now a stringent liquor law, but the temperance people, not satisfied with that, have got before the Legislature a constitutional amendment by which the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, other than cider and wine made from fruits of that State, are forever prohibited; and providing also that the sale of the said cider and wine shall be so regulated as to prevent drunkenness. But even this is not enough. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union says that another amendment will be presented at the earliest possible date to abolish even the native wine and cider.

A hypocrite is a man who pretends to be what he is not. It is not necessary that a man shall talk and pray in meeting in order to be a hypocrite. Religion has no monopoly in the line of hypocrisy. Any man, whether he be a professor of christianity or not, who pretends that he is an honest man when he is not, is a hypocrite. The young man who passes himself off in the family or in the social circle as temperate or chaste when he is not is a hypocrite. It is not necessary for them to join the church to be a hypocrite. Lots of people are priding themselves on not being hypocrites because they are not in the church when, in fact, they are among the rankest hypocrites to be found anywhere.—Golden Rule.

THE LONGEST BEARD IN THE WORLD.—Adam Kirpen, of Chicago, who possesses the longest beard in the world, is at present sojourning with relatives in this city. The beard which he at present wears has attained the wonderful length of nearly 12 feet. He disposes of this rather unwieldy appendage when walking on the street by rolling it around in a leather belt suspended about his neck. The length of the beard is such that he can pace both feet upon it and the other end upon being lifted up reaches a few inches above his head. The beard, which is a dull gray color, is quite thick and is the result of 22 years' uninterrupted growth.

OUR MOTTO.
We sell goods cheap. They will sell. And honest trade and low prices will tell. Welcome everybody to Germania Tanning Company's Store.

We have just bought 100 Ladies' hats, very cheap, and received them yesterday by express. We will sell them all trimmed, all colors, all styles, including "A-the-tic" hat from 50 cents to $5.00. We will sell them cheap, and the prettiest, the neatest, and the most fastidious can wear them with pleasure and pride.

Read our previous advertisements. Advertising like talk we know is cheap, but we forfeit honor and money if we do not do all that we advertise.

Why Does Germania Sell So Cheap?
This is the answer. People say, you pay as much, gentlemen, for goods as other houses do. Well, we don't intend to argue that point, though we claim buying for large stores, we buy more goods than anybody else, and as to whether to get them cheaper or not we don't care to say. But we do say this, our main business profit is our Tannery. For this we bought the property.

Our total store expense is comparatively nothing. We do say that we will sell you goods cheaper than you can buy them elsewhere; and remember we don't force anybody to buy.

We tell you the truth and nothing but the truth, and ask your inspection for proof of cheap and see for yourselves. We are strangers among you, but we have come to stay and make high prices pass away.

Mrs. Cawthon of Selma, formerly one of the belles of Jacksonville society, is the guest of Mrs. Jno. M. Wily.

Owing to the absence of Mr. Menko at Selma last week, on a visit to relatives, the usual looks of his choice stock of goods did not appear. He promises more and a surprise next week. Look out for Germania Tanning Co. locals.

Notice the advertisement of new store of C. D. Harper. His line of goods will be general, and prices low. He comes to our midst well recommended as a deserving man and we hope he may share the patronage of the public.

Messrs Thos. P. Renfro, E. G. Caldwell and Alex Woods left for Florida Friday. They go for the purpose of planting orange groves. Some of these gentlemen have already acquired lands in Florida. They are of the best citizens of our county and the Florida people need not be afraid to welcome them.

Mrs. Hamilton, and other of the Mobile ladies who have spent the summer here, loth to leave our delightful scenery and climate, still linger. If a genial climate could keep them, we could wish it might ever be spring here, despite the assurance of the bard who tells us, "Spring would be but gloomy weather, If we had nothing else but spring. But our desires cannot change the seasons. Winter will come and they will go to their more southern homes and warmer skies. But when spring again comes smiling over our 'misty mountain tops,' let us hope that, like the swallows, they may come again.

MARRIED, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Jno. M. Wily, Esq., in this place, Nov. 7th, by Rev. Father Ratus Isidorus Holand, David F. Lowe, of Montgomery, and Miss Annie Wily, of Jacksonville.

Quite a large gathering of the friends and relatives of the young couple from Montgomery, Selma, and this place met at the residence of Major Wily at 11 o'clock, a. m. to witness the interesting and impressive marriage service as conducted by Father Holand. After the service a rich collation was spread. This over, the wedding party took the train for the future home of the bride, followed by the kind wishes of our townspeople, who, without exception, loved and esteemed the beautiful young bride. The collection of wedding presents were costly, appropriate and tasteful. The marriage was quite an event in society circles here.

Ears For Millions.

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is extracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Seas known as Carchodon Rondellii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing was discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear What The Deaf Say!

It has performed a miracle in my case. I have no untruthful noises in my head and much better.

I have been greatly benefited. My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer, an personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to J. H. MONTGOMERY LETTER.

The two Houses organized Wednesday the 15th. The caucuses of both Houses were held the day previous and all Independents, as well as Radicals and other kinds of people distinct from the Regular Democracy, were excluded.

After a protracted struggle of more than a day, in which there was but one real vote difference between Brooks and Harrison for President of the Senate, Harrison was elected. He is one of the coming men of Alabama, and, although your correspondent supported Brooks first, last and all the time, he can cheerfully bear record to Mr. Harrison's ability, worth and patriotism. Under his hand the Senate will glide smoothly to business and continue in calm waters. Both he and Mr. Brooks are accomplished parliamentarians and with either in the chair, the country will or would have been safe.

In the House Mr. Foster had no opposition for speaker. He is another of the coming men of the State. In fact we might say he had already arrived. He is on hand. He stands in the succession as regards the Governorship, and the State would profit if he should succeed.

Beyond the organization of the two Houses little was done. Will let you have a more detailed letter next week.

Touching Inquiry from a Connecticut Democrat.

Hardford Times.

Do you know of

A lodge in some vast wilderness,

Some boundless contiguity of shade,

and work off a reverential, soul-reviving, heart-satisfying "id-n-i-t-y"?

A friend of ours recently wrote to a certain country newspaper office in this State, asking for a position, as local and news editor, etc., and a few days since received the following reply:

"One editor is about as much as this one-house paper will stand. He has to run all the papers, set type, do 'devil's work,' lead in prayer meetings, sing in the choir, use up the free whisky, and do other things too numerous to mention—and I generally do it."

For the last forty years we've known these duties of country editor, and performed them to the utmost of our full ability—but we hardly think it right to "tell tales out of school."—Lowndes Citizen.

Jesse. "Forty years!—free whisky!—full ability!" Good heavens, what a man! Nothing short of Dynamite will send him to the gate of St. Peter.

Stock Sales at Meridian.

Livingston Journal.

The fourth annual fair of "the Mississippi Stock Breeders' Fair Association," held at Meridian last week, was a decided success as regards horses and Jersey cattle, and pecuniarily.

The stock sales inaugurated by the association last year, so successfully, were equally successful this year, and the uninitiated were astonished at the prices obtained for pure blood Jerseys. We note a few sales:

A bull, the property of Hon. James Crook, Jacksonville, Ala., who began breeding Jersey cattle but a few years ago, sold privately for $500. Mr. Crook bought at auction another bull for which he paid $500. A heifer sold for $395, another for $400 and another for $410. Landreale Belle, 3 months old, the property of Mr. M. L. Jenkins, sold for $200.

The foregoing brief report of sales will indicate the interest being developed in the production of a superior butter stock, in which respect the Jerseys are unexcelled.

Rapid Transit Lager Beer Saloon.

Such are the words which are placed above a door in a saloon in this city. What a terrible significance they have. "Rapid Transit" indeed, from respectability to ruin, from health and happiness to disease and death, from what might be a heaven here to a hell hereafter. Easy travel it is along the downward road with a swift and pleasant gliding motion, but what a terminus! Could the end be seen how few would the passengers along the sin-stained way! One is reminded of the dreamer, who saw a bridge stretching over a chasm, and, as he stepped, with here and there a trap-door, down through which ever and anon the unheeding passenger fell—fell from the bridge of life into the rapidly rolling river of death alone, but eternally. Surely this is one of the largest traps. Never are its hinges still, but one victim after another falls through, struggles hopelessly with the roaring torrents, and is swept away to join thousands of wretched ones who have preceded him.—Ex.

A Good Work—A correspondent

furnishes the following relative to the effects of the prohibition law that went into effect in this county January 1st.

Editor Examiner:—Solicitor Pitts and Sheriff Graves and Brinson were talking in a company of several last Friday night. "You see," said the Solicitor, "this prohibition law has cut the criminal racket down to nothing almost."

"Is that so?" was eagerly asked. "Why, certainly it is. The grand jury have only found 21 true bills this week, and we only expect to get four or five more, whereas heretofore we have ranged from 60 to 100. 'Yes,' put in the sheriff, 'we used to have 75 to 90 cases on the county court docket every month, and now they hardly average 5 or 6.'"

What a magnificent result! What better evidence of the benefits of this law could be shown? Murder, manslaughter, arson, robbery, "rounds without cause," and all manner of crimes with their burden of costs, and their far greater burden of sorrow to the hearts of fair women and tender children—these come no longer to destroy the happiness, and clog the prosperity of this people.—Hayneville Examiner.

No more touching compliment could be paid than that of the child who had overheard a conversation at the table on the qualities of a wife. As he stooped over to kiss his mother he remarked:—"Mamma, when I get big I'm going to marry a lady just 'zactly like you."

Southern Cultivator for November.

Truly we can say each visit of this standard Southern agricultural journal gives increased pleasure. We emphasize the fact of its being a Southern publication, because the prosperous North sustains many valuable agricultural papers, and it is most proper that Southern farmers should not only have a journal devoted to their interests, but should have one that is first class in every respect. Aside from the fact that its columns, richly laden with information on all subjects connected with agriculture, is invaluable to the progressive farmer, it should be maintained because it is the exponent and representative of the Southern farmer.

The November number contains an interesting description of Col. Peter's Jersey herd and his "Thirty Years' Experience on a North Georgia Stock Farm." His success demonstrates that such ventures will pay South as well as North, and every farmer should read the article. "Green Manuring" or how to renew a run down farm, is an article alone worth the price of subscription. "Economy in Feeding," by the Hon. T. J. Moore, of South Carolina; "Plantation Life in the South," by Prof. D. C. Barrow, of Athens; "The Fence and Stock Laws of Georgia," are only a few of the interesting articles.

Dr. Jones' "Thoughts for the Month" and his two full pages of answers to inquiries are inestimable value.

The publishers have shown enterprise ahead of anything ever attempted in the South—illustrating the letters of their correspondents. "J. O. A." of Charlotte, N. C., contributes an article on "Hillside Ditching," and the publishers have made designs to illustrate his methods. Mr. Louis Dubose, of Vicksburg, Mississippi, has written another article on "Straw and Fodder Barrenness," and Messrs. Harrison & Co., had their artist to draw sketches to illustrate the cheap building employed. And so it is to the end. Improvement is the watchword of the publishers? As a matter of course. Now, they say, they print three times as many papers as was done a year ago and the volume is constantly swelling. Every farmer, not a subscriber, should send $1.50 to Jas. P. Harrison & Co., Atlanta, Ga., for a year's subscription.

Now that Jacksonville unfortunately misses the big shows this year there will be a genuine old fashioned turnout to exhibit at Oxford, Tuesday, November 21st, and at Alexandria Wednesday, Nov. 22nd inst. Citizens and families who have not seen a circus in 20 years, in fact everybody is going to be on hand this time. There is something novel about wagon shows that always draws a crowd.

DAWN.

I hear the clasp of the day:

Night's mighty veil is upward drawn,

And with its golden fringes play

The jeweled fingers of the dawn.

The curling vapors of the night

Are shot with quivering gleams,

And now the most risen sun

Darts up a thousand crimson streams.

From heaven to earth the splenored steals,

Down gilded vases to windowed towers,

The conscious bells break out in peals;

God! what a wondrous world is ours!

The dery colors slowly fade,

In sapphire depth they pass away;

The sun begins his grand parade;

From pole to pole 'tis perfect day.

Earth's children feel their mother warm;

From drowsy beds they wake and start;

And forth, through streets and alleys swarm

In myriads to the noisy mart.

O happy toil! O blessed fate!

To one thought too close confined,

That, with each motion, drops a tear,

And shifts the pictures of the mind.

I envy you your changing strife,

Your weary hours, your evening rest,

When all the little cares of life

Are lulled to slumber in the breast.

For my poor soul, that still will float

Near one idea of arena device,

Drifts on, like the Laplander's boat,

Close moored beside its berg of ice.

THROUGH THE TWILIGHT.

Lily Vennor was late home from her work on this particular night.

A dismal February night it was, with a grey fog above, through which the lamps shone like yellow dots of sickly flame.

But Lily was used to all sorts of weather.

Lily Vennor was a milliner.

All day long she sat, with seven and twenty other girls, in a long low-ceiled room on the upper floor of a monster building in one of the narrow streets of the West End, working until she vaguely wondered within herself if there were women enough in all the world to wear

the dresses she and her companions made.

It was hard work, and it was poorly paid; but Lily Vennor had known what it was to be without employment for weeks at a time, and she was thankful even for Mr. Murex's four shillings a day, with the stipulation that, in case of extra haste, an hour or so overtime should not be objected to.

The poor are generally worsted in their bargains, nor was our little heroine an exception to the rule.

But the work was over at last, and

Lily was in the outer room, tying her curls under the brown felt hat, whose tasteful loops of ribbon had been sponged and turned so often, and folding her worn slippers across her shoulders.

And as she took up her dinner-basket, she heard the gay voice of Mary

Reid, one of her fellow-workers, saying merely—

"St. Valentine's Eve!

"You don't mean that you have forgotten it, Ida?"

"Why I expect a dozen valentines at least to-morrow."

Lily Vennor glanced up at Mary

Reid as she spoke.

A dozen valentines?

Yes, there was every probability that she would receive as many as that.

She was a dark-eyed brilliant-complexioned young beauty, with a pretty

Greek nose, a dimple on the left cheek,

and teeth as white as sliced coconut.

She would be one to marry early, and escape from this bondage of toil and poverty; and for a moment Lily wished that she too were beautiful.

And then came a second thought.

St. Valentine's Eve—and she had promised Midge and Edith, the two little twin sisters at home, a valentine for this year, when Midge had submitted to the ordeal of vaccination, and

Edith had been so docile at the task of learning to make stockings.

For Lily Vennor, girl though she was, had already been burdened with the cares of life.

Her father had married a second time, and lost his wife, leaving Lily at his own death with the charge of these two little ones, Edith and Margaret, commonly known as "Midge."

It was a hard, hard task, but Lily never quailed.

She had accepted it simply as she would have accepted any other decree of Providence, and the two little orphans had learned to love her with all their innocent hearts.

And now she paused in front of the brilliant show-windows, with her worn purse in her hand, trying to decide upon some particular style of valentine which would be pretty enough to suit

the children, and which would not be too dear.

So she went into the shop, humbly awaiting her turn, and bought two six-penny valentines, which the clerk super-ciliously tossed toward her.

"I should like two postage stamps,"

said she meekly.

"Stamps!" echoed the clerk. "This ain't a post-office!"

Lily pointed to a printed placard in the window—"Stamps for Sale Here"

—and the clerk, grumbling under his breath, gave her the two stamps.

The next morning however little

Midge and Edith danced up and down with joy when the postman left the two valentines at their door.

"And here's a valentine for you, Lily," said Midge.

"Only the envelope hasn't got such pretty gilt roses on as mine and Edith's have."

Lily was standing with her hat on as the child ran up to her.

"A valentine," said she, "for me?"

"But I think you are mistaken, little Midge."

She opened the letter with a sensation of wonder as to whom it possibly could be from.

For she got so few letters, this gentle drudging little creature, that the very sight of an envelope in a strange hand was a circumstance to startle her.

"From Doctor Ingraham," she said to herself.

"He will call here to see me this evening."

"Oh dear, dear! I knew how it would be."

"He thinks it's so strange that I haven't said anything about paying him for his attendance on Midge and Edie

when they had the scarlet fever."

"But he doesn't know how poor we are!"

"And he doesn't know—how should he?—that I was going to his office this very week; to ask him for the bill, and try and save up the amount, little by little, until I had got enough."

"Oh dear! oh dear!"

"What am I to do?"

She laid out the children's rations on the table—a bowl of milk, and two liberal slices of bread for each—and cautioning them not to go near the fire—which smoldered in a little cast-iron stove—went to her daily work with a heart which felt like lead within her bosom.

Mary Reid was talking in her high,

soprano voice, about the valentine she received.

Leila Payne and Sarah Howell were giggling over gilt and tasseled epistles, directed in masculine hands, but Lily went straight to the forewoman.

"Mrs. Dobbs," said she, "can you lend me ten dollars?"

"I?" said the forewoman, in sour surprise.

"I need it very, very much!" said poor Lily; "and if you will give it to me to-day—this very afternoon, I mean

—I will pay you my next two weeks' entire wages as they come in."

Mrs. Dobbs did a little mental arithmetic in the recesses of her brain as she stood there staring with fishy eyes on

Lily Vennor.

Yes, the interest was not so bad.

She thought it might "pay," and so she lent the ten dollars for a term of fourteen days, Sundays and holidays included.

And Lily, mustering up what courage she could, stopped at Doctor Ingraham's office on her way home from work.

"I won't give him the trouble to call,"

said she to herself; "for, of course, it will be a disappointment to him to know that he can't get his whole bill

"But I will tell him I will pay the rest as soon as ever I can."

"And I hope he won't be very much vexed; for, oh, he was so good to me

when the little ones were

SATURDAY, Nov. 25, 1882

No mail from Montgomery on Tuesday last.

Quite a large crowd attended the circus at Oxford on Tuesday last. They took in just one thousand dollars.

The Rome Courier says that snow fell in that place on last Monday to about the depth of four inches.

Faith hath a vision of its own, but no light in which it can distinguish objects except the light of prayer.

We learn that one of the employees of Orton's circus was found dead last Monday night near Choccolocco creek. It was said that he froze to death.

The Montgomery and Selma mail due here on Tuesday last were received by the Northern mail Wednesday. Uncle Sam has very efficient route agents—very.

Gadsden has a new fire engine—a steamer we presume. It is to be hoped that Gadsden will not, in the future as in the past, suffer so much from the devastating element.

Paul Jones a well known whisky dealer of Atlanta, recently purchased of Dr. Holmes of Rome, a pair of fine dogs for which he paid $300. Blood money is the price of a dog!

We call attention to the new advertisement of H. A. Smith, Rome, Ga. His stock of Christmas and holiday goods is large and varied, and our merchants dealing in such wares, would no doubt consult their interest by giving him their orders.

A Milwaukee man has been discharged from a bank position, sued for $25,000 damages, and also on a criminal charge, hunted by an irate neighbor with a shot-gun. He says he can understand now how the Ohio Republicans felt when the German voters got after them.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In a decision to-day, acting secretary of the interior, Joslyn, holds that the terms of the pre-emption law are not complied with by using the land for grazing purposes, such use not meeting the requirements of actual occupancy.

The Eufaula Times and news says: "Major H. R. Shorter, of this city, is leading attorney for parties in Georgia seeking to set aside a devise of about four hundred thousand dollars. It is said that Major Shorter's fee will be away up in the thousands." The devise referred to is no doubt that of the late Col. Shorter, of Rome, Georgia.

W. P. Cheney, a somewhat prominent minister of the Baptist church in Georgia, publishes a card in the last Christian Index and South West Baptist, severing his connection with the church as a minister of the gospel. He says: "My present convictions do not allow me to believe or preach the fundamental doctrines of the Christian system."

A HIT.—Dan Voorhees, of Indiana, during the late campaign, was making a strong argument against prohibition, and asked "what is to become of the surplus corn, if prohibition prevails?"

A sturdy farmer asked him if he really wanted an answer to that question.

Dan said if you please.

"We will have more pork and less hell," said the farmer to the amazement of the statesman.

In the East Indies, electricity has been applied to a strange use. A platinum wire, connected with the poles of a battery, is stretched around a tree, and, as it becomes immediately re-hot, it is gently sawed, with the requisite pressure against the tree, and rapidly burns its way through. It is said a tree can be cut down, without any waste of timber, in about fifteen minutes that would require two hours to fell in the ordinary way.

A Druken Man Afire

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Alvin Gorman last night while intoxicated and on his way home fell in the road, after putting his lighted pipe in his pocket, and dropped asleep. His clothing took fire and he was burned so badly that he will probably die. He presented himself this morning at the house of a neighbor in a terrible condition, his clothing being all burned off except the wristbands of his shirt and five or six inches of his pantaloons, which were tucked in his boots.

Preparation for Another Cotton Exposition.

VICKSBURG, Nov. 18.—Formal invitations were forwarded to-day by the National Cotton Planters' Association of America to the cities of New Orleans, Galveston, Mobile, Savannah, Charleston, Richmond, Augusta, Montgomery, Nashville, Memphis, Louisville, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Baltimore to compete for the location of the World's Cotton Centennial Exposition, to be held under the auspices of the above association in 1884. It is contemplated to raise $2,000,000 for this exposition, $500,000 of which is expected from the city securing the location, which will be decided on January 1st, 1883, by the executive committee of the association.

MONTGOMERY LETTER.

MONTGOMERY, Nov. 22, 1882.

The General Assembly has not yet done sufficient work to indicate entirely the character of legislation that will distinguish the session.

The convict question and the general road laws of the State will certainly receive attention, and members from the Black belt will doubtless push for a repeal of the crop lien law.

The question of prohibition will also receive due attention, but I think the sentiment is against any legislation on that head for the entire State. So far there has been as many bills to repeal prohibitory statutes introduced as for prohibition. The tendency is to leave these matters to the people under local option laws.

After the adjournment of the Senate to-day I went to the prohibition convention now in session in this city and listened to the proceedings for an hour. A resolution to memorialize the Legislature to submit a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale of liquors in or their importation into the State to the people to be voted on at the next general election, was voted down in the Convention with almost entire unanimity, as also a resolution that the Temperance Alliance of the State would support no man of intemperate habits for office. The idea seemed to be with the Convention to keep the question out of politics. The petitions for prohibitory legislation for Calhoun have not yet arrived.

The election of U. S. Senator comes off Tuesday next. General Morgan, Gov. Watts and Hon. Peter Hamilton are understood to be candidates. A most bitter and relentless war has been made on Calhoun on the ground of his alleged habits, but so far it seems he has not been hurt by it. He will doubtless succeed himself.

From present appearances the old Railroad Commission will be retained. The contest between Mr. Hammond and the sitting member and Capt. Savage has not been decided. The committee have allowed Capt. S. further time in which to get his papers here. The committee will meet to-night and probably submit their report to-morrow.

Gen. Forney, Jno. M. Caldwell, Capt. Savage, Mr. Walter Dean, Mr. Jno. M. Crook, Mr. Joe Mathis and Mr. Wallace Woodward of Calhoun have been here since the commencement of the session, some of whom have returned. Messrs. Kirk and Brandon, as also Mr. D. P. Gussels passed through the city Tuesday, en route for the Conference of the M. E. Church at Lafayette.

Reports from Prohibition Counties. The proceedings of Temperance Convention recently assembled in Montgomery are very interesting—particularly the reports of delegates from the prohibition counties as to the effect upon the morals of the people, and the decrease of crime. We publish them for the information of our readers in Calhoun in case the question should ever be submitted to a vote of the people.

Dr. Smith or Autauga, said the work is progressing very satisfactorily in that county, except in one beat, and nobody lives up there. His report was very favorable to the cause.

Col. N. G. Glaser, of Lowndes gave some statistics of criminal proceedings, showing a wonderful decrease in crime since the act went into effect.

Rev. Z. A. Parker, of Etowah, illustrated the effect of prohibition in that county. Where there had been thirty-eight arrests for violations of law during a certain length of time previous, there had been only seven during the same period since. The morality of the county and its prosperity had largely increased.

Understanding that a bill would probably be introduced to repeal the existing law, he informed the representatives from that county in the Legislature that a repeal of that law would not represent the sentiment and wishes of the people.

Hon. J. C. Orr, Senator from Morgan, said that county hadn't done much for prohibition, but it was represented at Montgomery by two men in full sympathy with the object of the convention.

Dr. Robinson of Conecuh, stated that as an effect in his county, there are numbers of men who sign counter petitions and now favor abolition first in the county, then in the State.

Gen. P. P. Randle of Randolph, said prohibition had been carried twice by the popular vote in his county, and the second time by double the vote cast at the first election. All the young men favored prohibition while singular to state, the older ones opposed it. Large numbers of colored men voted for it. Since it went into effect there had been more improvement every way than for five years previous.

Rev. J. O. Hixson, of Bullock, reported that partial prohibition in that county had produced a wonderful diminution of crime, and the feeling is growing in favor of making it general. He was instructed to say that the proposition to repeal the act would not be endorsed by the people.

Gen. Bulger, of Tallapoosa, was called for and stated that as representative of that county two years ago he succeeded in procuring the passage of an act prohibiting the sale of liquor in the county. In the spring of 1881, the first four months, seven deaths had occurred, five of which were outright murders, and three from casualties, and whiskey was the sole cause of all. Meetings were interrupted by drunken men; there were no Sabbath schools or literary schools worth the name. Since the passage of this law not a drop of blood has been shed in anger. It formerly required more than a week to dispose of the criminal justice, and at the last term it was cleared by Wednesday afternoon.

Dadeville has now three prosperous churches and two elegant schools, male and female. Yet there are advocates of the whiskey traffic, and a bill has been introduced to repeal the prohibition act and allow drug stores to sell it on a physician's prescription. The other representative has introduced a bill to strike out the drug store provision. He, (Gen. B.) had the pleasure to present a petition signed by 1,400 names against the repeal of the law. Four out of every five in his county are in favor of prohibition.

A citizen who had become a convert to prohibition, had told him that 2,000 more bushels of corn had been made in his precinct for families than before.

A number of others made similar statements, all of which were listened to with interest and greeted with general applause.

The movement for an exposition of mineral, agricultural and mechanical products of the south to be held at this city not later than 1884, has taken definite shape. It is in the hands of men who are certain not to fail. No enterprise undertaken in this portion of the south can promise so great benefits as this. Let every one stand ready to assist.—Chattanooga Times.

Brother Gardner on the Cyclone.

Detroit Free Press

A communication from a state official of the state of Ohio inquired if Brother Gardner could explain the recent overwhelming change in the political situation, and the old man motioned for the janitor to put more wood in the stove and replied:

"Just for once I will broke ober our rule an' answer dat query as best I kin. While de American people am great pollytishuns, dey nebbber forgit dat dey am also free citizens. You can lead 'em about so fur in pollyticks, religiu, charity, or debility. De democratic party led de people to a sartin pint an' den lost its hold. Dimocrats let go de party to become citizens. De republicans have led de people to a sartin pint, and de republicans has sot in. Suspishun, fear an' disgust am takin' hold of de people. Let me say to you—

"1. An American lubs his kentry mo' dan his party."

"2. Pollytishuns will be blindly followed to a sartin turn in de road an' den de party will halt and scatter."

"3. No matter what strength a party has, corrupshun will scatter it in time."

"4. Digotry, avarice, selfishness, knavery and open fraud, are elements of pollyticks. Dey will bring success fur a time, but dey am also sartin to bring defeat."

"De kentry has got tired of de present rule an' its evils an' am gwine to make a change. When de president of de United States becomes a ward pollytishun an' senators rob de kentry at large to pave de way to a second or third nominahsun de honest republican will let go on party ties to look out fur de kentry."

"An' now one word to de cull'd people. We has woted solid an' has bin left. In dis country we had our candidates on boaf tickets, an' dey war buried onder sight. De dimocrats owed us nuffin', an' dey paid us off. De republicans owed us de last sixteen yars of rule, an' yet republican votes beat our candidates on de republican ticket. Dat's all. Figger it out fur yerselves."

Almost a Mile a Minute. Knoxville Chronicle.

Engineer Matt Franklin, with his new Rogers locomotive 121, one of the lot of heavy passenger engines recently purchased by the E. T. V. & G. R. R., pulled the party of railroad officials to Cleveland and return last Monday. By directions of the officials he put her out and made her do her prettiest, making a run of 54 miles to the hour going down. On the return trip, at some points, for a short distance, where the road was short, he made at the rate of 59 miles to the hour. Those new engines are capital pieces of machinery, and with a track in the right condition, there is no telling what time could be made by them.

New Railway Company.

The Montgomery Advertiser of the 18th says, "Articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the Secretary of State last week, and commissions issued to Samuel Thomas, C. C. Brice; Samuel Shear, H. L. Terrell, L. M. Selwan, and A. O. Beebe, of New York, and D. W. Caldwell, of Cleveland, Ohio, to incorporate the 'Alabama Coal and Iron Railway Company,' to run from Birmingham to Mobile Junction, in Clark county; and to the same persons to incorporate the 'Selma, Mobile and New Orleans Railway Company,' from Selma to Mobile."
